

THE CCJ TOP 250

A YEAR FOR SURVIVAL

Based on the top line, 2008 wasn't a horrible year for North America's top for-hire trucking companies, but the top line includes record-high fuel surcharges. With freight soft and costs high, many shed trucks and drivers but kept rolling.

BY AVERY VISE

If you look only at the gross revenue numbers for North America's 250 largest trucking companies, 2008 didn't seem like such a bad year. Among those for-hire carriers for which revenue numbers were available to CCJ, total revenue rose 3.9 percent – not a great year by any stretch, but certainly not clearly disastrous. Without behemoths UPS and FedEx, whose scope tends to skew the results in the CCJ Top 250, trucking companies still eked out a 2.9 percent gain.

Unfortunately, most trucking companies wrap their fuel surcharges into total revenues. So when you consider that diesel prices averaged a third higher in 2008 than in 2007, the meager revenue gains for 2008 begin to appear far from healthy.

Indeed, you get a much better picture of what happened in 2008 – and continues in 2009 – by looking at the power unit and driver situation. Accurate year-over-year comparisons are difficult because much of the CCJ Top 250 equipment and driver data is based on government records that aren't necessarily updated each year. Still, you can see the trend. Isolating just those carriers that were in the CCJ Top 250 in both 2008 and 2007, the number of straight trucks and tractors dropped 5.8 percent, and the number of drivers declined 1.1 percent. Excluding UPS and FedEx, the Top 250's power unit fleet declined 7.5 percent, and the number of drivers dropped 5.1 percent from 2007.

Remarkable perseverance

But while many big fleets downsized, surprisingly few failed last year. No doubt, one factor – especially for truckload carriers – was the rollercoaster ride of diesel prices. If a carrier somehow managed to make it to the fall when the rest of the economy seemed near collapse, its near-term prospects were good largely because of the lag between booking surcharges and receiving them. Plummeting diesel prices in the second half of the year acted to boost cash flow.

The largest outright failure from last year's Top 250 appears to be Chesterton, Ind.-based Priority Transportation, which ceased operations in September 2008. Priority had ranked No. 133, having slipped from No. 96 the year before. In addition, two major carriers – Performance Transportation Services and Jevic Transportation – had failed in 2008, but both occurred before last year's CCJ Top 250 was published.

There have been some consolidations, however. For example, major bulk conglomerate Kenan Advantage Group – No. 36 in this year's CCJ Top 250 – in 2008 absorbed Transport Service Co., which had ranked No. 149 last year. The acquisition no doubt was a big factor in Kenan's 29.4 percent jump in revenues in 2008 compared to 2007. Vision Logistics Holding – a unit of private equity firm Welsh Carson Anderson and Stowe – joined together major heavy-haul players Ace Transportation and Venture Transport Logistics as well as their smaller affiliates Dynasty

Transportation and Texas Hot Shot. Ace and Venture had ranked No. 60 and No. 80, respectively, in last year's CCJ Top 250. This year, Vision Logistics Holding debuts at No. 28.

The usual suspects

Taking into account the effect of fuel surcharges on revenue, the relative performance of industry segments fall fairly well in line with expectations. Given the state of the housing market, you would expect household goods carriers to have had the hardest time, and you would be right. Revenue for household goods carriers reporting it collectively fell 4.6 percent. Likewise, motor vehicle sales remain weak, and the several vehicle haulers reporting results posted a mere 1.6 percent gain.

Most other trucking companies that depend substantially on demand for consumer goods – less-than-truckload, package and dedicated carriers, for example – posted weaker revenue gains than those with significant industrial clientele or more stable demand curves, such as bulk, heavy haul and refrigerated products. The LTL segment's performance is somewhat misleading, however. While as a group LTL carriers posted a slim 1.8 percent increase over 2007, the numbers were depressed significantly by troubled LTL giant YRC, which saw revenues dip 7.1 percent last year. Excluding YRC, LTL carriers posted 7 percent higher revenues in 2008.

With perhaps the most diverse freight in the industry, truckload general freight carriers posted revenues that were 6 percent higher than in 2007, coming in between the best and worst performers.

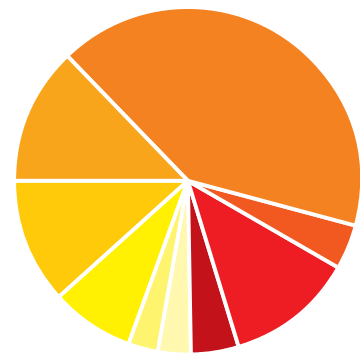

While 2008 wasn't much to write home about, the steps trucking companies have taken in downsizing their operations could serve them well by keeping capacity in check, at least for a while, once the economy does rebound. The question is: When will that be?

ABOUT THE CCJ TOP 250®

The CCJ Top 250 is the most comprehensive ranking of U.S. for-hire carriers.

The ranking takes into account not only the revenues posted by a trucking company but also its fleet size and employment base. The size of a carrier's truck, tractor and trailer fleet indicates its level of investment, while driver employment and owner-operator arrangements suggest a carrier's value as a supplier of jobs.

For a detailed explanation of the CCJ Top 250 ranking methodology, see page 66. In addition to detailed information on the CCJ Top 250, the package includes rankings of Top 250 carriers by revenue, power units and drivers, as well as a ranking of carriers within their industry segments.

Source of the C/J Top 250 data

Data for the C/J Top 250 is drawn from a combination of surveys of trucking companies and publicly available information, such as the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration's Motor Carrier Management Information System and reports filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission. All carriers included in the ranking were given an opportunity to review for accuracy data obtained from public sources.

Ranking methodology

Commercial Carrier Journal's ranking of companies is a blended scale based on a combination of revenue, total power units and number of drivers rather than a ranking simply by revenue. Companies considered for inclusion in the Top 250 were ranked from high to low by revenue, power units (weighted based on the type of power unit as discussed below) and drivers, and assigned a rank in each category.

The numerical rank stored in each of the three fields was added together (revenue rank + vehicle rank + driver rank) to provide a rank sum. This sum then was ordered to provide the overall ranking assigned to each carrier, with the lowest sum receiving the highest rank.

A number of carriers failed to report actual 2008 revenue. In order to be included in the blended ranking, they were assigned – for blended ranking purposes only – a calculated revenue figure. This calculated revenue was based on the following:

- If the carrier had provided actual revenue in 2007, revenue growth was determined for carriers operating in the same industry segment that has provided both 2007 and 2008 revenue. That revenue growth then was applied to the 2007 revenue to determine calculated revenue for that carrier failing to report actual revenue.
- If the carrier had not reported revenue for 2007, its 2008 revenues were calculated by multiplying the carrier's total number of power units by a segment-specific revenue total per power unit for carriers reporting 2008 revenue numbers. Calculated revenue will be different by some amount from actual revenue, but it is anticipated that for its part in the blended ranking the difference will be slight and of little material influence in the relative positioning of the companies.

The power unit ranking, which represents an investment as much as a physical-count measure of trucking assets, took into account the difference between tractors and trucks. The assumption is that a for-hire carrier with 1,000 tractors has a greater investment in equipment than one with 1,000 straight trucks. For the purpose of the blended rank, a truck was weighted at half the value of a tractor.

Carrier Combinations

A number of the companies in the CC/ Top 250 represent combinations of several motor carriers. We have made a good-faith attempt to ensure that affiliated companies are reflected in that way. In so doing, we have made some judgment calls on whether to combine companies. For example, there are situations of common ownership where the operations appear to operate independently, such as Swift Transportation and Central Refrigerated Services; Southeastern Freight Lines and G&P Trucking; and RoadLink and Panther Expedited Services. In those cases we have chosen to list the carriers separately.
